

John & Bill,

It would seem that the constitutional right to "compulsory process" in a criminal case applies to the trial. It does not include pre-trial discovery. Granting pre-trial discovery is a legislative not a judicial function. State ex rel Upham v. Bonebrake, 303 Or 306, 736 P2d 1020 (1987). Because of this history, are we going to run into problems getting Bonebrake to make Upham cough things up as he should.
